

UNC CHARLOTTE

ANTH 4453 (undergrad)/ANTH 5453 (grad)
FIELD PROJECT IN ARCHAEOLOGY
FIRST SUMMER SESSION 2021

First Day of Class: May 23, 2022
Last Day of Class: June 29, 2022

The Course Meets:
Monday - Thursday
9 AM - 1 PM

- Learn to use maps, locational reference systems, and GPS.
- Learn excavation techniques including laying out the grid, labeling units, describing deposits, using shovel and trowel, screening and sorting, and labeling finds and samples.
- Learn about recording standing structures, historical artifacts, bottles and bottle glass, and recording ceramics.
- Learn correct photographic techniques, about scales, North Arrows, and Information Boards, and photographing artifacts.
- Learn the basics of field illustration, drawing horizontal and vertical surfaces, and drawing artifacts.

Get sore, sunburned, bug-bitten, and dirty.

This course can prepare the participant for entry level positions in Cultural Resource Management (CRM) jobs.

Students are responsible for their own transportation to Holly Bend (carpooling is strongly encouraged).

Permission of the instructor is needed for both undergraduate and graduate students. Enrollment is limited: for permission contact Dr. Alan May, Department of Anthropology, jamay@uncc.edu

